DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 2, 4-6, 8, 9, 11, 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 5,228,280 to Ratzlaff et al.

The Ratzlaff '280 patent discloses a baler forming crop material into a cylindrical bale. The baler includes a mainframe and a bale-forming chamber. The bale-forming chamber has a plurality of bale-forming members (36) and an infeed region (Fig. 2, 56) for urging crop material into the bale chamber to be formed into a bale. The baler further comprises a conveyor (64) positioned below the infeed region (56) and underlying the bale-forming members (36). The powered conveyor (64) receives crop material passing through the gaps in the bale forming members and deposits the crop material onto the infeed members. See col. 5, lines 47-50.

Regarding claims 2, 4-6, 8, 11, 13: The conveyor extends across the width of the baler (see Fig. 5) and underlies the infeed region (See Fig. 2). The bale forming members (36) comprise a plurality of side-by-side belts having spaces between adjacent belts. The conveyor is a belt conveyor having a forward (62) and rear (58) roller, with one of the rollers powered. The baler further includes a trough (70) and a drum (58) cooperating with the trough.

Art Unit: 3671

3. Claims 1, 9, 11, 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 5,255,501 to McWilliams.

The McWilliams '501 patent discloses a baler having a bale chamber (51) formed of a plurality of bale forming members (60, 61) and an infeed region (57) for urging crop material into the bale chamber. The baler further comprises a powered conveyor (69) underlying the bale forming chamber. The conveyor has a conveyor member for receiving crop material passing through the gaps of the bale forming members and a support and drive for moving the conveyor member towards the in-feed members to deposit the crop material onto the in-feed members (via 66-68, 75-77).

Regarding claims 11 and 12: The conveyor (69) is a belt conveyor having a pair of rollers and a continuous belt.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 5,228,280 to Ratzlaff et al.

The Ratzlaff '280 patent discloses the claimed invention, as stated in paragraph 2 above, except for the conveyor belt being a single belt extending the entire width. Instead, the Ratzlaff '280 patent utilizes a plurality of side-by-side belts. However, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to utilize a single belt in place of a plurality of side-by-side belts.

Art Unit: 3671

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 3, 7, 10, 14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

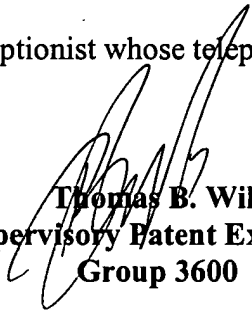

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
